It was a ~~trip~~ trip I'll never forget. The school year was finally over, and I got this bewildering sense of freedom. Actually, I wanted not to be bothered by anyone, as I was at the time going through a difficult stage of character development and couldn't understand people around me, so I was unhappy to say the least when my father announced we're going on a camp holiday.

My father was a hard-working and determined man; mother was considerate and loved reading, sister was a bizzare sight and quite annoying.

When we arrived, I pretended to be asleep. My father told me: "Stand up and help us, your sister is ^{trying harder} ~~more~~ ~~helpful~~ than you!" I became very irritated for some reason and shouted: "I didn't even want to be here. Leave me alone!"

A sense of guilt overflowed me some time afterwards, so I decided to apologise. "I'm sorry, I shouldn't have said that, it was rude and ungrateful."

I ~~was~~ ^{told} my parents, tears in my voice. I was confused as mum didn't seem to be angry and ~~told~~ ^{said to} me: "We understand that it's challenging for you now; come and spend some time with us"

This event influenced me greatly and helped me understand that I can't be so ignorant towards others. Your family are your closest people who will always be by your side.
