Only few students are aware of a spectacular museum (our school) with no limitations to the infinite number of rare exhibits and great amount of information our school offers. Could it be that it's not visited? Unfortunately, the truth is always painful. This report will provide necessary snippets of information concerning current situation with a museum attendance along with its description. Above all, negative aspects of the museum and their possible solutions are included in this report as well.

lex gr. change

Description

→ To begin with, the school museum encompasses a wide range of decent materials related to history as well as appealing pieces of paper, for instance, rare documents and ancient writings. A good few of architectural works of art are also represented. Therefore, a choice is indeed eclectic.

log.

Current situation.

Despite all peculiar features museum has, it is far from brilliant. One (key) notable downside would be its layout. It is so ^{uncomfortable} arduous to work within the museum that it becomes arduous to be there at all. Moreover, the ^{interaction with} school museum is not intercalated into school programme. Subsequently, the output of information results in ~~the~~ popularity of the museum rapidly declining.

lex. PK3

Recommendations

→ • objects could be rearranged to the extent that it's convenient to work with adequately laid out information; • ~~amends~~ ^{amendments} (must be made) in school syllabus must be made to enhance the ^{engagement} interaction (between pupils in the museum and student).
