Our school museum is a fantastic place which contains a large volume of information, but my classmates and I have found out that it is not used at all. According to the attending ^{list}, each month the number of guests rapidly decreases. We do not want to let it go.

The ^{next} year our school museum ^{celebrates} its hundredth birthday. There are a lot of old books with classics of British literature, an uncountable number of historical documents, science articles and old technical inventions.

But considering these facts there is a very surprising moment — only seven teen students have visited the museum at least once this month. First of all, it is caused by an attending limitations — no one can find anything he needs in ten minutes a day. In this case pupils lose any interest of being there and the others always need to hurry. The second reason is the timetable. A lot of students have their lessons finished after lunch when the museum is already closed for visitors.

Thus, we need some changes to be applied. Considering the first problem, we have a suggestion to remove a time limit of attendings. Then, the opening ^{time} as the closing should be later at least for an hour, because students do not have an opportunity to visit the museum during classes. Finally, it will be great if the visible output stuff of the museum was bigger to attract more people.

In conclusion, we want to say that we all love our school museum and do not want it to become forgotten.
