Our school being one of the most valuable places to the people in our small town means a lot to us. And so does the matter of its improvement. As students, it's important to us that our school provides everyone the information and knowledge they need. As of recent, we started to notice that our old museum doesn't serve that purpose as it did before, so we wondered how can we deal with this issue?

First of all, the museum doesn't offer a large spectrum of information and topics to learn about. The exhibits aren't kept in a good condition and they cover topics that the students are interested in very rapidly. The limitation of resources makes a big impact on the museum's reputation - the students become less encourage to explore exhibits.

+

My classmates and I are really fond of our school's engagement in different social events, so we would like to suggest organising a tour of the museum. For everyone interested. An upbeat and enthusiastic delivery of information can enhance the percentage of people taking part in the life of the museum. Students can even volunteer to help bring it back to life! Doing a clean-up or restoring some exhibits might also help the place to seem more lively. If possible, we could try covering topics of interest of the students, to attract more visitors.

CRH

We are very proud to help our school improve and take part in such important parts of its life. We hope this report helps the museum become a valuable part of it and cause a positive outcome.
