ENHANCING THE SCHOOL MUSEUMINTRODUCTION

This report is aimed at briefly describing the school museum, explaining its ineffective use and offering recommendations.

MUSEUM'S DESCRIPTION

lex, The museum can boast about its impressive collection of numerous valuable books, including rare encyclopaedras and foreign literature. Moreover, there are some unique instruments and special equipment. Unfortunately, high-tech telescopes are getting rusty owing to disuse, and mold is noticed on old codes. In the event of further lack of interest among students, plentiful objects are highly likely to become outdated, which is bound to result in the museum's dysfunctioning. 60

REASONS FOR INEFFICIENCY

lex, As the accessibility<sup>100</sup> of the Internet grows rapidly, there is a buoyant trend of resolving to the web instead of using offline sources of information. This being the reason, paper books are seen as relicts of the past. On top of that, hardly does any student of our school give preference to studying<sup>150</sup> in a cramped space, and the museum is too tiny to provide comfort to everyone.

RECOMMENDATIONS

Sp. On of the potential<sup>20</sup> solutions would be to set a limitation<sup>100</sup>, hereby ensuring that every student is granted equal access to the museum. Promoting<sup>30</sup> offline activity is another recommendation, as it will substantially ameliorate<sup>2000</sup> the situation of Internet-addiction. Furthermore, it is advisable to encourage engagement in less popular disciplines, such as astrophysics and Roman law.

CONCLUSION

To sum up, there are a number of<sup>20</sup> welcome changes, the output of which must be an increased<sup>10</sup> attractiveness and fruitfulness of the school museum.
